

BROOKLYN SEMINARS IN MODERN PSYCHOANALYSIS

What is BSMP?

The Brooklyn Seminars in Modern Psychoanalysis (BSMP) Program is a series of seminars designed to offer personal intellectual growth and emotional education to individuals and health care professionals. BSMP subscribes to principles of the Society of Modern Psychoanalysts.

Who should attend?

PEOPLE WHO ARE SERIOUS about working more effectively and developing more satisfying relationships; people who want to know more about themselves and how the patterns they've developed in their lives may be helping or hindering their efforts at work and in their relationships.

BSMP Founder
Carol Brod, Ph.D.

Planning Committee

Ernest Brod, J.D.
Barbara D'Amato, Psy.D. L.P.
Phillip Katz, J.D.
Eileen Klein, L.C.S.W.
Camille NiCastro, L.C.S.W.
Michaela Kane Schaeffer, Ph.D.
Elliott Schuman, Ph.D.

Brooklyn Seminars in Modern Psychoanalysis
170 Rugby Road, Brooklyn, NY 11226

BROOKLYN SEMINARS IN MODERN PSYCHOANALYSIS

presents

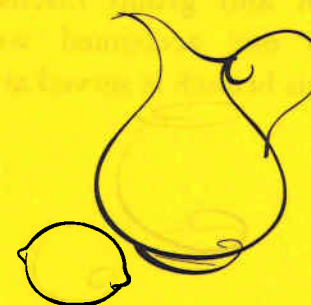

BRUNCH IN BROOKLYN

November 15, 2009

Staying Together

Does Life Keep
Giving You Lemons?

Introduction
Making Lemonade
Elliott Schuman, Ph.D.

170 Rugby Road
Brooklyn, NY 11226
Phone: 917.602.9394
ErnieBrod@yahoo.com

Does Life Keep Giving You Lemons?

BSMP's 25th year will focus on "Staying Together." Elliott Schuman will introduce our November 15 program by looking at the issues in our lives which complicate our efforts to sustain relationships with people who matter to us. Is adversity a barrier, or may it prove a benefit? When you experience something as a failure, can you really tell whether it will diminish or perhaps enhance your life? Is staying together always the best thing? Do we wallow in our woes, or employ our impressions of having failed to learn how to be more successful in the future, or to disabuse us of the mistaken notions that we have failed (or worse, that we are failures).

We begin at 10:30. Following the introduction and group discussion, we break into our acclaimed workshops. A sumptuous brunch is served at 1:00.

Twenty-Fifth Year

The brunches are held in a landmark home at 170 Rugby Road, between Beverley and Albemarle. Q train to Beverley Road. Street parking always available.

Introduction Making Lemonade Dr. Elliott Schuman, Ph.D.

Have you had the experiences that: What was perceived as tragic turned out to be beneficial; adversity brings out the best in us; we learn more from pain than from pleasure? Elliott Schuman, with your help, will explore the possibility that difficulties and disappointments may be propitious, rather than the pits.

Elliott Schuman, Ph.D. is Professor of Psychology at Long Island University, and a supervisor in the Department of Psychiatry of the Mount Sinai Hospital and School of Medicine. He is a licensed psychologist and psychoanalyst.

Workshop A:

Ernest Brod and Barbara D'Amato

Workshop B:

Michaela Schaeffer and Eileen Klein

Workshop C:

Phillip Katz and Camille Nicastro

Save the dates:

Jan. 24, March 21, May 16

REGISTRATION

Fee: $40 at the door if received before November 11, 2009. Student rate of $20 for early registration with student ID. (Send copy of ID)

Name: _____

Address: _____

City: _____

State: _____ Zip: _____

Email: _____

November 15, 2009

Workshop Choice

First Choice: _____

Second Choice: _____

Reserve #: _____

Amount Enclosed: _____

Check payable to BSMP

Mail to:

BSMP

170 Rugby Road
Brooklyn, NY 11226